

Pleasanton 'bicentennial poster'

Pleasanton's salute to the nation's bicentennial gets off to a colorful start this week with the "official presentation" to the city council of an original set of drawings. The work of Pam Brekas of Pleasanton under commission to the Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee, the seven "old town scenes" will be offered the public as a $2 poster, or in single scenes suitable for framing.

The posters — measuring 16 by 22 inches — and the 8 by 10 inch individuals go on sale Monday at the following business locations: First National Bank, Double Take, Gingham Corner, Harris Realty, House of Cards, Taurus Crafts, Valley Bank, Warren Wade's Art

Etc., and Pleasanton's city offices.

The full poster includes the city seal and the official bicentennial designation, in addition to the seven familiar buildings of ancient vintage.

Press meet tomorrow

Doctor walkout threat spawns emergency plan

LIVERMORE - Valley Memorial Hospital's emergency plan for handling patients in case of a major doctor walkout will be unveiled at a press conference tomorrow.

Doctors may not be practicing after midnight, Wednesday, because that is when their current malpractice insurance runs out. They have received word their rates will and many doctors denied not to renew their coverage because they can't afford the new rates, which are as high as $20,000 a year, or because passing the hike on to their patients would make office visits exorbitantly expensive.

Not a doctor in the Valley has said he would risk practicing without malpractice insurance.

Valley Memorial Hospital directors at their Thursday night meeting committed the hospital to providing at least emergency care for their patients if local physicians fail to get malpractice coverage by May 1.

The directors empowered hospital administrator Tom Andrews and Dr. Richard Lutz, chief of the medical staff, to proceed with a "state of emergency" plan to deal with the situation.

"It is an extremely fluid situation and practically changes hourly," Andrews stated.

The hospital anticipates an increase of 200 to 300 per cent in the number of visits to the emergency room and at the Family Health Care Center in San Ramon if a significant number of the Valley physicians close their doors.

Doctors emergency room and at the center are covered by in the VMH's own liability insurer.

According to Andrews, it is not known at this time what the status of the local physicians and especially anesthesiologists will be come May 1. Some will be open with full liability insurance, some will be available for emergencies only, and some will be closed.

The state of emergency plan calls for restricting surgeries to emergency only with a possibility of some elective surgery performed only if the physician is covered. Maternity care is considered emergency treatment.

For doctors who do not have malpractice insurance, short-term coverage under the hospital's insurance carrier can be arranged for doctors to perform emergency operations, although it would be expensive for the hospital. Emergency surgery cases will be referred to other hospitals not affected by the crisis but if it is detrimental to move the patient or if time is of the essence, the surgery will be performed at VMH.

"The critically ill will be cared for," Andrews assured the doctors.

Some of the hospitals not affected by the insurance crisis are: Kaiser, county hospitals, Children's Hospital in Oakland, Veterans Hospital, and any in Santa Clara or San Joaquin Counties including Tracy.

Even though the emergency room and Family Health Care Center will substantially increase in usage, Andrews anticipates a big drop in in-patients.

The hospital will establish a communication center which will keep in close touch with other facilities to know what resources are available for patients. The directors decided that they will call a special meeting Wednesday, the last day of coverage, if the situation changes significantly.

In other business, directors Thursday night decided to defer any changes in the hours the Family Health Care Center is open until the next meeting. This will give them time to study the report prepared by the administration and to see what effect the May 1 crisis has on the center.

According to Ted Fairfield, chairman of the building committee, the artment of Mines and Geology has cleared the site of the new medical center in Pleasanton for any major problems.

The board appointed director Arthur Henry and former director William Struthers to the Comprehensive health Planning Special Study Committee, which will consider the needs and types of services necessary for the new Pleasanton hospital. At a joint meeting of the Contra Costa and Alameda County Comprehensive Health Planning Councils and VMH officials in December, Andrews asked the council to help him decide on criteria.

The relocatable building behind the hospital will be ready for occupancy in a week or two, Andrews announced.

Auxiliary President Carol Andrews announced it was National Volunteers Week and the board thanked the Auxiliary for all they have done for the hospital.

State data shows valley gap in costs-per-pupil

A wide gap continues to exist between the per pupil expenditure and the tax base of wealthy and poor districts in the state, according to figures released Friday by Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction.

And an accompanying chart states that the Pleasanton Elementary School District spent the lowest amount per pupil in 1973-74 of any district in Alameda County. Figures supplied by the district show that $936.66 was spent per pupil. Murray Elementary, a K-8 district like Pleasanton, spent $983.22 per pupil in 73-74.

Livermore Unified, which takes in not only kindergarten through eighth grade schools but high schools in the district, lists an expenditure of $989.26. Amador Valley Joint High School District spent $1,206.32 per pupil.

Riles says the wealthiest 10 per cent of the state's school districts are more than eight times richer than the poorest 10 per cent, when judged according to the value of local property which can be taxed for a child's education. Two prime examples of this in Alameda County are Mountain House Elementary, with a high tax base figure of $170,136 and Newark Unified, with a county low of $7,758.

As a further comparison, Sunol Glen, a one-school district like Mountain House, has an assessed valuation per pupil of $100,704 (again using the latest figures which are from 1973-74). Sunol's expenditure per pupil in 1973-74 was $1,428.53 — which is the highest of any district in the valley.

Riles believes the result can be "a huge disparity between the per pupil expenditures of neighboring school districts."

Among unified school districts, Emery in Alameda County had a per pupil expenditure of $2,941, the highest in the state, and Vacaville in Solano County had a per pupil expenditure of $840, the lowest in the state.

Among the state's high school districts, Sierra in Fresno County had a per pupil expenditure of $2,093, the highest in the state, and Sweetwater in San Diego County had the lowest, $945 per pupil.

The gap in assessed valuation per pupil in rich and poor districts is staggering," claims Riles. Among the disparities he cited was that of Travis in Solano County, with the lowest assessed valuation per pupil among unified district ($2,350) and Emery ($122,851) with the highest.

The median tax base in the state is $23,611 per elementary school pupil, Riles said.

More recent figures, not included in the report from Riles' office, show a significant reversal in the downward trend in state support after passage of Senate Bill 90, a measure designed to achieve a greater equalization of school support across the state by increasing state aid. Riles said the state's share jumped to 46 per cent and the local share fell to 54 per cent in 1973-74.

Conversely, according to Riles, the federal share of the total cost of operating public schools dropped from 7 per cent in 1971-72 to 6 per cent in 1973-74.

The State Department of Education statistical report also shows a steady decline in the number of pupils per class in the state.

In the six years from 1966 to 72, the number of pupils in the average class dropped from 28.5 to 27.2 in the first, second and third grades. A similar decrease was reported for grades four to eight, where pupil-teacher ratios dropped from 29.8 to 27.6.

Most enrollment declines, not only in Alameda County but throughout the state have taken place in kindergarten through eighth grade. The number of pupils fell by 1.8 per cent between 1972 and 1973.

The state's high schools, however, won't feel the decline in students for another year, Riles claimed.

Adult school enrollments, meanwhile, spurted 9.3 per cent between 1972 and 73.

BART bus ties to be increased

Ten new BART bus stops will be added in Livermore beginning tomorrow, announced BART Director Robert Allen last week.

"The Livermore area clearly merits improved bus service to BART," said Allen and added that evening service to Pleasanton and San Ramon will be lengthened on the same date.

The new stops will be on the U-L line which runs from Livermore directly to Interstate 580 and then to the Bay Fair and Hayward BART stations. The U line, which runs from Livermore to Pleasanton along Stanley Boulevard, has been re-routed to serve broader areas of the city.

The new U-L line stops will be: East Avenue at Hays; East Avenue at Dolores; East Avenue at S. Livermore; 4th Street at S. M Street; Murrieta at Holmes; Murrieta at Stanley; Murrieta at Olivina; Murrieta at Las Positas; Murrieta at Del Norte; and Murrieta at Portola.

The U-L buses will complete their run at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and will drop passengers off in Livermore when traveling eastbound. However, no pickups will be made in Livermore on the eastbound run.

Buses westbound — towards the BART stops — will pick up passengers at the new stops.

U line buses will travel Stanley Boulevard, Murrieta Boulevard, 4th Street, N. L Street and Railroad Avenue to the Livermore City Hall.

Evening commute U-P line service will be lengthened with the last trip to leave BART's Bay Fair station at 6:31 p.m. The last U-S line bus to leave Bay Fair will now depart at 6:44 p.m. Both lines connect with the basic U line at Regional Street in Dublin for through service to Pleasanton and Livermore.

Council to proclaim?

'Good Times' rolling into Pleasanton

The "good times" are coming to Pleasanton May 3 and, in keeping with that spirit, the city council is expected to adopt a resolution Monday night which commemorates the "Let the Good Times Roll, Part 11" parade, which will be staged by KNBR Radio.

The resolution, which is reproduced here, was written by City Attorney Ken Scheidig.

Everyone was in a dither, everyone was in a stew. Working and planning, preparing for Good Times 11. The question arose, "Who would be mayor for a day?" Me! Me! Me! Cleary, Carter B. or Williams would say.

Came a clear-sighted, level head. No other than Pleasanton Mayor Ed Kinney. With an idea he had contemplated aplenty.

"Why not be council members for a day? That way each can be a dignitary in your own way!" But then the problem became — who to choose? There were nine men and one fem, eight had to lose!

Mayor Kinney agreed that he would take Cleary. After all, two Irishmen would be so cheery. Blue-eyed, ruddy, witty and wild. You just knew that each was a grown child.

But then there was Frank Dill, the morning jock. Who could he be? Who could stand the shock?

Aged and mature, bon vivant, a man who'd been around. He matched no other than Bill Herlihy, Mayor Pro Tem of P-Town.

The Great Rutabaga, Carter B. Smith. He needed someone to converse with. On roses, Charlotte, his Horticultural Society. He got Bob Philcox, a banker with propriety — or was it notoriety?

Joyce LeClaire was the next to be assigned. She got Dave Niles — the sexy Italian with wine. A feminist, a NOW'er, true blue. Stuck with an MCP, what will the libbers do?

And, finally, Les Williams' turn came around. He was assigned to the newest in town, Roger McLain, guardian against airport schemes. He could relate to Williams' fantasy, airlike dreams.

With assignments made to personalities in the know, It was decided to honor those who really run the show! So managers and attorney and Isabella too. Acknowledgement goes to each of you!

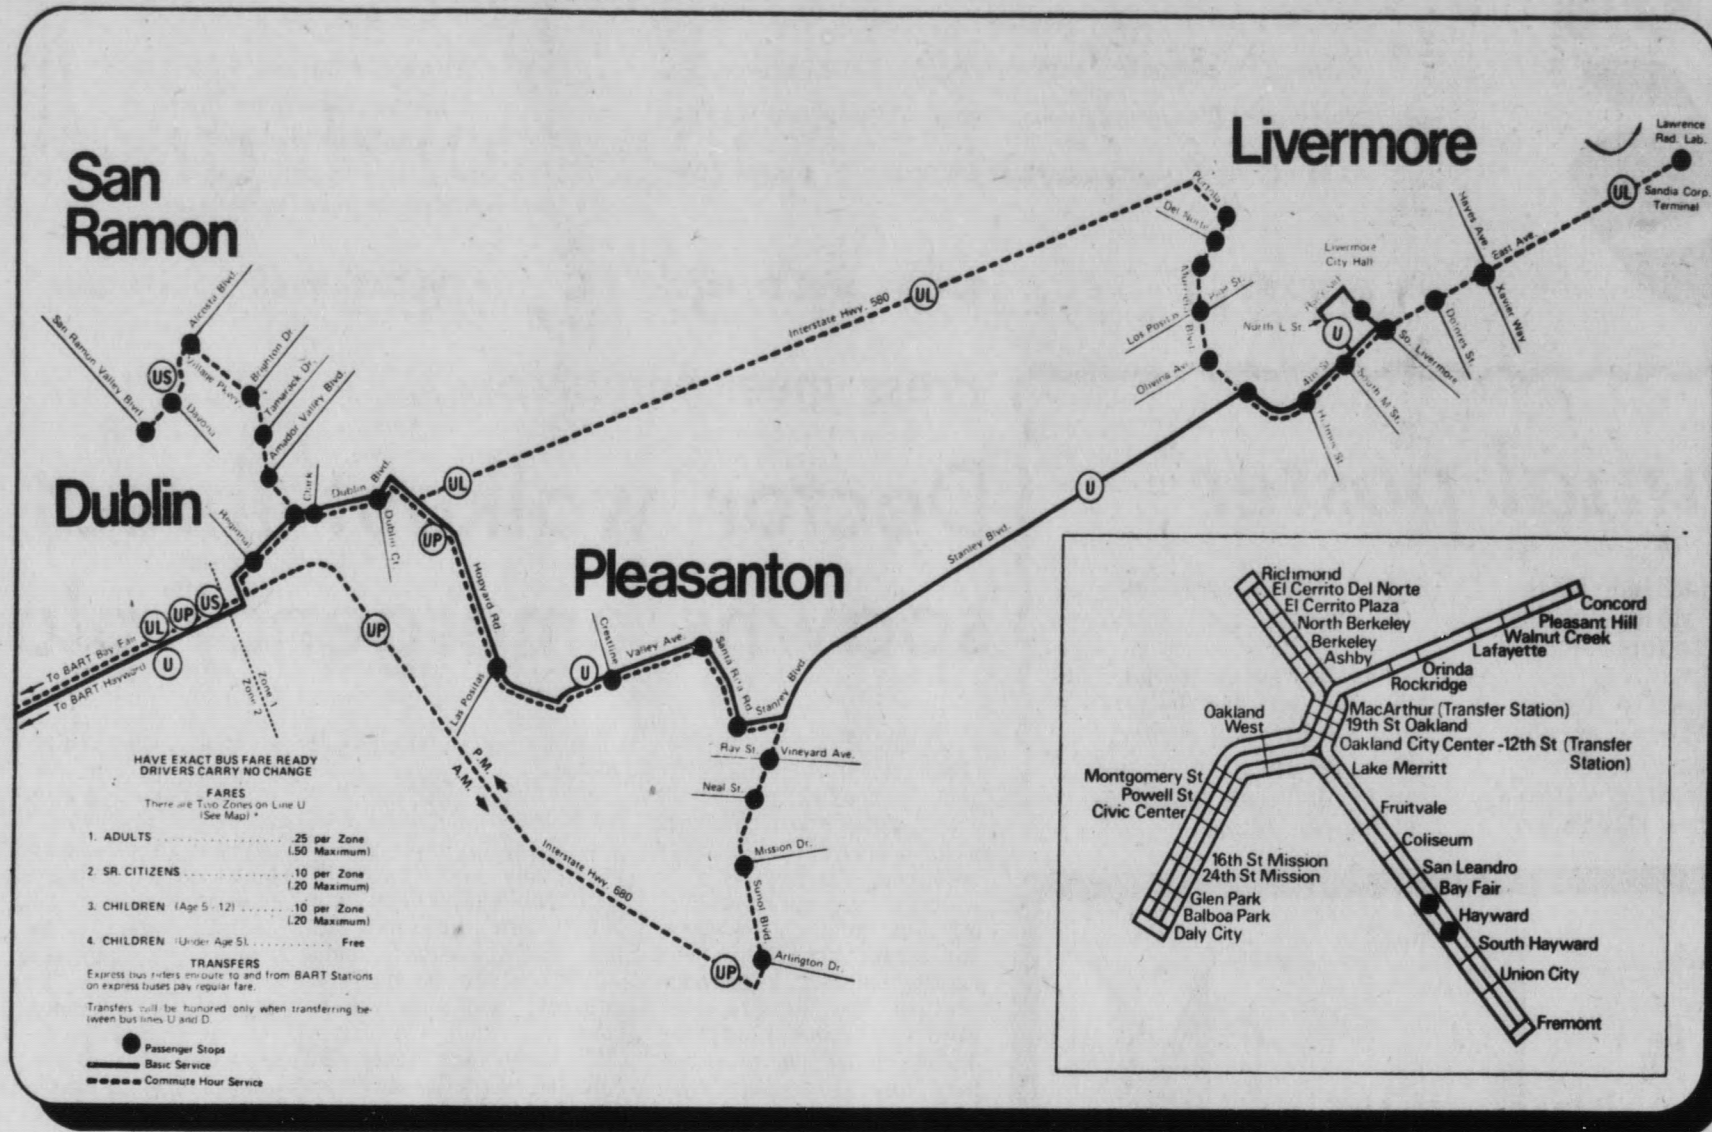

Tom Haggerty's alleged to be a dirty old clown. Could there be someone to match him in town? Long-haired, tie-less and not often around.

Ken Scheidig, the city attorney, the ski bum, seemed sound.

And last to be honored, though not be quirk, Is Isabella Lemon, who made it all work. Without her aid, Good Times 11 wouldn't be here.

So join with us, give her thanks and a hearty cheer. So now THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED. An invitation goes to every man, woman, child, To come to beautiful Pleasanton on May 3

Mental health status slated for evaluation

LIVERMORE - The status of mental health care in the Valley will be scrutinized Thursday night when the Valley Council for Mental Health (a branch of the Mental Health Association of Alameda County) meets at 8 p.m.

The public meeting will be in the State Savings and Loan building, 999 East Stanley Blvd.

Clarence Hoening will ask for comments on a letter to David Odell, head of the county mental health program, on county fees and facilities.

Hoening will also review a recently published listing of local mental health resources.

Gary Willets will lead a discussion on a proposed flyer on mental health services in the Valley. A review of a proposed mental health services reorganization plan will be directed by Sally Green.

Hoening will end the meeting with a review of the current mental health concerns of the Tri-City Council.

Thieves hit health hub

PLEASANTON - Burglars broke into three offices Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, stealing more than $1,000 in cash and equipment and ransacking the Valley Mental Health Services office.

The thieves apparently entered the 3720 Hopwood Rd. offices through a skylight, then broke into the offices of Wand C. Colvin Tax Service, the Aterbery Insurance Agency, and the health services.

Kicking open the office doors, the burglars ransacked the mental health services office, dumping file cabinets to the floor and taking a $700 electric typewriter.

Some $885 in cash and equipment, including $317 in cash, was stolen from the Aterbery Insurance Agency, while the tax service has reported no known property taken.

Valley Mental Health Services is an Alameda County sponsored agency offering a complete spectrum of psychiatric services. It began some seven years ago and expanded to its present facilities last summer.

Vintage Hills residents protest the quality of workmanship in their Pleasanton homes.

Angry residents picket to protest their homes

PLEASANTON - About a dozen angry Vintage Hills residents voiced their dissatisfaction with homes built by the H.C. Elliott company Saturday by picketing the opening of Elliott's model home complex on Tawny Drive.

The residents claim there are many defects in their homes, ranging from curled up counter tops to loose cabinets and drain gutters that go the wrong way, that have not been fixed by the builder.

Bob Kroetch of Sylvaner

Court said the protest was designed to warn potential buyers of Elliott homes of the problems they might have.

Another residents, Jim Cross, also of Sylvaner Court, said he brought defects in his home to the attention of the construction manager last October and, to date, his warped front door has been fixed but his kitchen cabinets are still "departing from the wall."

Cross said he spoke to Harry Elliott Jr. about the problems he and some of his neighbors are experiencing and was assured they would be taken care of, but nothing has been done.

Elliott opened up the model home complex, which consists of four homes on Tawny Drive, because he was granted 45 sewer connections by the city council following the Regional Water Quality Control Board's amendment to the cease and desist order at the city sewer plant which had prohibited new connections for nearly two years.

Camp Parks for refugees knocked by Mayor Kinney

PLEASANTON - Edward Kinney, Mayor of Pleasanton, confirmed on Saturday that East Bay mayors have been summoned to a high-level meeting on the question of housing Vietnam refugees.

Mairo Obledo, state secretary of health and welfare, has asked Bay Area leaders to confer with him on the refugee problem.

Obledo has recently expressed Governor Brown's concern for "bringing 500,000 Vietnamese people into California."

It is believed that Obledo will raise the question of using Bay Area military bases as possible refugee camps. One of those bases would be Camp Parks.

Mayor Kinney expressed the opinion that it would be "ridiculous" to consider Camp Parks for such a use.

"For one thing there is no sewer service and for another they must consider the impact on the valley's environment," Kinney said.

State report shows sales

Retail sales throughout the valley were out front of a state trend in the critical fourth quarter of 1974, figures just released by the State Board of Equalization indicate.

Taxable sales throughout the state in that "Christmas quarter" were up 7.8 percent in 1974 over the same period for 1973. However that trend was well below the 12 percent increase in prices reported over that same 12-month period.

Livermore was ahead of that trend, recording a 12.5 percent boost in taxable transactions for the final quarter of 1974 compared to one year earlier. The totals were $17,339,000 in taxable sales in the fourth quarter of 1973, and $19,509,000 in 1974.

Pleasanton continued to struggle with one of the state's lowest per capita showings in retail sales. In the fourth quarter of 1974, taxable transactions hit $10,331,000. That was 11.8 percent better than the $9,248,000 figure recorded in the same period for 1973.

Both valley cities (figures are not available for unincorporated communities such as Dublin) were well behind such retail hubs as Walnut Creek, Hayward, Concord and even Campbell, all with large regional centers to bolster their sales, and their sales tax revenue. Pleasanton even trails other cities of comparable population — including Milpitas with $17 million in taxable sales for that fourth quarter in 1974, Newark at $11.4 million and Union City which zoomed up to $16 million.

Livermore's fourth quarter increase was particularly surprising in the light of drastically reduced sales in "autos and auto supplies" — $2.9 million in 1974 compared to $3.7 million for the same quarter one year earlier. (In the first quarter of 1973 Livermore recorded a whopping $4,450,000 in auto and auto supplies sales.)

Pleasanton is expected to show even poorer sales totals in at least the first half of 1975, city finance director James Walker reports, due in large part to the loss of the Chrysler-Plymouth agency from the community, "which has been producing in excess of $20,000 per year in sales tax revenues to the city," Walker explained.

(Dublin has become the auto sales' center for the Amador Valley, but those tax revenues funnel directly into the county's treasury, as do all of Dublin's taxes with the exception of the VCSD levy.)

An idea snowballs

Hexcel's honeycomb gives strength to skis, casts

Five young college graduates had an idea in 1948 — 27 years later the idea was worth $55 million and the five men had captured the American Dream.

The idea was a "honeycomb core" and the implementation of the idea was done through a corporation now known as Hexcel, which last year sold $55,497,000 worth of materials and recorded net earnings of $2,169,000 at their corporate headquarters in Dublin.

Originally, the honeycomb principle found its application only in the aerospace industry, but the waning of that sector's purchasing power in the late '60's has caused Hexcel to diversify into such varied areas as skis and casts for broken bones.

The honeycomb core is simplicity itself. Rather than use a thick sheet of metal as the wall of an airplane, say, or two metal sheets separated by metal posts, Hexcel pioneered the idea of using metal with hexagonal openings.

A honeycomb airplane wall consists of two thin pieces of fiberglass glued to an approximately one-half inch thick piece of metal that resembles a honeycomb in a bee's nest.

Looked at from the side, the metal appears to be solid as it separates the two pieces of fiberglass. Looked at from above, however, it can be seen that almost 97 per cent of the metal that would be needed to fill the area completely is not there. Instead, there is air and the metal that remains forms hexagonal shapes that resist stress almost as well as if the metal were a solid sheet.

Thus, the airplane wall made with honeycomb technique is 97 per cent lighter than a solid metal wall and still much stronger than a wall made with metal sides and posts inbetween.

The only disadvantage is cost, but in the aerospace industry's heyday, cost was not the most important factor. Performance was. And a light, strong material will produce better performance and better safety.

Hexcel products have traveled to the moon, are used extensively in Air Force planes and are common in helicopters. Their use on a consumer basis has so far been limited to Hexcel skis, which are not your run-of-the-mill skis. The top line Hexcel skis retail for a mere $285 a pair.

But after Royce Hughes, John Schafer, Paul Anmen, Ken Holland and Roger Steele had their original idea and then retired to live on stock dividends, the management of Hexcel realized that the aerospace boom couldn't last forever.

They began to diversify, purchasing corporations that were involved in the production of honeycomb cores. Hexcel's Livermore plant, for example, takes fiberglass made in Seguin, Texas, and impregnates it with adhesive so it can be easily attached to the metal core.

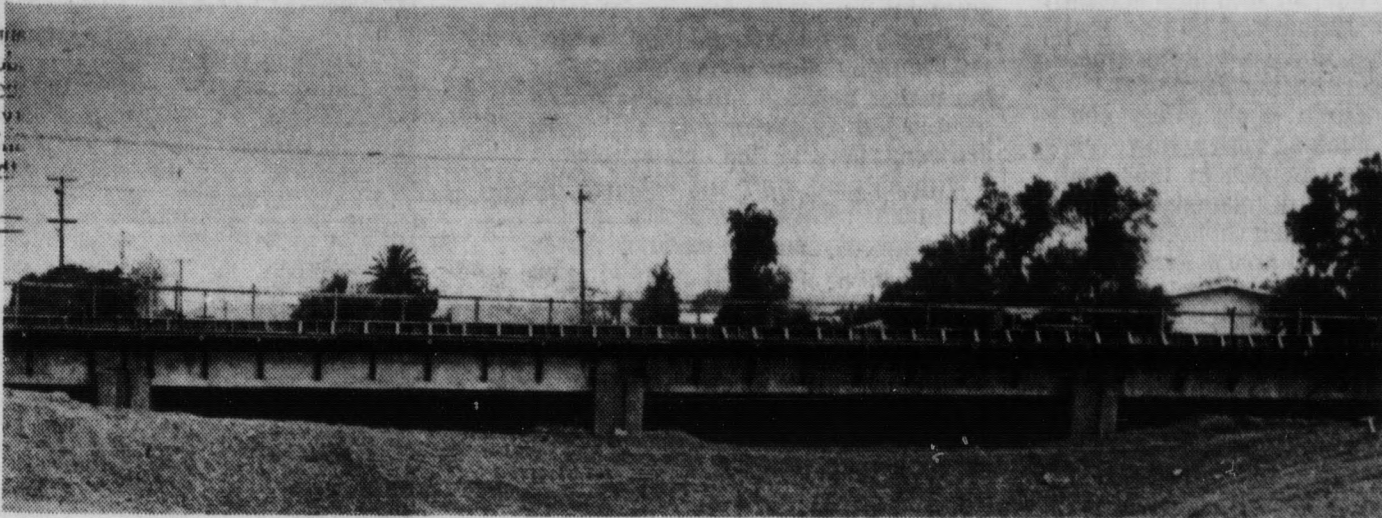

Also, the Livermore plant produces the aforementioned skis and a fiberglass material with graphite woven into it. The weaving of fiberglass and similar materials grew out of the use of fiberglass as the top and bottom of the core products and has now become an important segment of Hexcel's business.

Work with weaving, adhesives and resins led to the development of a revolutionary cast for broken bones that not only allows air to reach the skin but can also be taken into the shower, the ocean or a swimming pool.

Although the new cast has yet to see wide use on humans, Hexcel is promoting it strongly to veterinarians and eventually hopes to see them used extensively on humans.

Livermore improvement

No longer just a pile of dirt surrounded by barricades, Livermore's grade separation project, which is 15 per cent complete, is beginning to resemble an overpass for the railroad tracks and an underpass for automobiles. This photo shows the project on N. Livermore Avenue, facing Chestnut Street. According to the latest reports from the city, traffic is expected to be able to use the underpass starting January 1 of next year.

It was refreshing as well as encouraging to be in attendance at the combined Pleasanton Jaycees and Jaycee Wives Auxiliaries 20th Installation Dinner held recently at Howard Johnsons in Dublin. With a prevailing, or so it seems, negative attitude among the "under 30 generation" as I refer to them, it was great to see these particular young people thinking, working and acting positively with their community, fellowmen, — pardon — fellowpersons and country.

With the incoming presidents, a husband and wife team of Gail and Pat Geary, it looks as though the clubs' next year will be a record breaking one.

Pat has interesting goals in mind for the Jaycees One is, once and for all, settle the records on the ownership and use of the firetruck known as the Jaycee Firetruck. Seems there were some old time Jaycees who are now firemen and feel the truck belongs with the Fire Department. Pat promises all questions on this matter will be taken care of immediately.

His second project, which hopefully works out as it will benefit the entire community where socials and fundraisers are concerned, is a joint community council. This would involve getting representatives from all clubs in the area to serve on a council and help set up dates and correlate activities so all benefit from their fundraiser and eliminate duplicates as well as two events in one evening. In a town known as, "nothing to do here," one himself could meet coming and going in an evening if he attended all that is offered.

Pat would also like to initiate a family life program with emphasis put on the family, have a historian and get the club's records up to date.

One plan Pat has in mind which brought a cheer from the ladies, was to have joint meetings with the two clubs to make their efforts a 50-50 relationship. "We don't want to be known as the guys who come home demanding dinner and then rushing off to meetings." Noise from the audience indicated all were not in agreement with him on this! After reading the article in the "Times" recently regarding the lack of adult leadership in PYI, Pat wants to get with this group to see of what assistance the Jaycees can be. "After all this was a Jaycee project," he reminded the members, "and we can't let it down now."

I'm sure PYI will be glad to get help since the parents of the teens in the community have not shown any interest at all. If I ever again hear "we need something for our teens" from an ever loving adult, I will scream right on the spot until they carry me away!

Gene and Jayne Tatmon, national directors with Jaycees and Jaycees Wives, were the installing officers for the evening ceremonies. Gene is presently running for state vice president and a worthy candidate he is.

Gene's wife, Jayne, another person with charm, personality and class also gave an excellent presentation to the Jaycee Wives before the formal installation of officers.

If you read the Times on Tuesday, April 22, you saw the pictures of the Jaycees with their "slap stick comedy" for the outgoing president. For those who didn't the president received a chicken with whipped cream right in his face.

Not to be outdone by the men, the women also had their own ceremony for their outgoing president. When the procession of members appeared singing and carrying a covered tray with something underneath, ooh's and ahhs and laughter. Beautifully dressed for the evening with a nice fresh hair do — why those gals wouldn't do that to her would they????? The gals managed to keep the suspense going long enough to leave Leeann quivering in her shoes and turning every color under the sun! At the moment when Leeann, a plaque with a chicken was uncovered to the high relief of Leeann.

Leeann laughs in delighted relief as a symbolic chicken plaque is unveiled, and the Jaycee Wives forgo 'trial by chicken' for a good laugh.

Women take action in concern for life

A book on this planet's uncertain future got Eileen Rinde involved.

A group discussing women and their relationship with the world around them got Lonnie Murphy involved.

Now, the two Livermore women are both active members of Woman to Woman Building the Earth For Our Children's Sake, or Build the Earth for short, a group that is very concerned about the dangers of nuclear power.

"More than being against anything," said Mrs. Murphy "we are for life and things that enhance life." Fearing that unsolved problems with nuclear power could well remain unsolved, Build the Earth is sponsoring a series of educational programs throughout the Bay Area that will culminate in a May 21 mass trip to Sacramento.

Although none of "The Time is Now!" programs are scheduled for the valley, Build the Earth is sponsoring one of the hour-long presentations at De LaSalle High School in Concord Tuesday night at 8 p.m. (The school is about 2 miles east of the Treat Boulevard exit of Interstate 680.)

One of the concerns voiced in the program is that decisions made today on whether to continue with nuclear power plants will irrevocably affect the life of the coming generations.

"Our goals are moral concerns about the planet," said Mrs. Murphy and added that "we feel education is the answer."

To that end, Build the Earth's march to Sacramento will try to spur Governor Jerry Brown and the newly-formed State Energy Commission into quick publication of the pros and cons of nuclear power.

With the apparent success of the drive to put the Nuclear Initiative on the ballot in June of 1976, Build the Earth would like all such information published by January of 1976 so that the people can make a well-informed decision concerning nuclear power.

Build the Earth is not solely concerned with nuclear power, however. The group was founded in 1962 and deals primarily with relationships between women and their children, themselves and the world around them.

The Build the Earth symbol is a satellite picture of the planet surrounded by a rainbow — which represents the rainbow God showed to Noah after the flood that signified that He would not destroy the earth. The Build the Earth rainbow is an indication that they wish to keep the planet as God gave it to man.

The 500 members of the group — mostly on the West Coast — hope to have 500,000 signatures to present to Governor Brown on May 21 to show how much concern there is about nuclear power in the state.

life style

"We cannot speak to it as scientists but as mothers — it is a moral issue" said Mrs. Murphy.

"If there really are answers to the questions we would be happy," said Mrs. Rinde but she cautioned "If we do not answer the questions and it turns out there are no answers, then we have problems."

"People need information," added Mrs. Murphy. She said one of the goals of the preset drive is "to people to the point where they can even say there are things here we don't know about."

With no paid staff and nothing like the public relations expertise at the fingertips of the pro-nuclear power groups, Build the Earth is relying on woman to woman contact and "The Time is Now!" programs to drum up support.

But even after their campaign on nuclear power is settled one way or another, Build the Earth will continue to probe women and their relationships with the world around them.

Mrs. Rinde emphasized that the change in attitude to nuclear power cannot stand alone. Problems like pollution and energy must be solved by individuals as well as by government.

"Weas individuals need to shift our attitudes," added Mrs. Murphy. "We all need to take a responsible part."

Ellie Welch Suggest Ways To Merchandise Your Home

There are tricks to any trade, or to put it more accurately, the right way and the wrong way to merchandise any produce in order to sell it. This is true whether you are trying to peddle peanuts, bicycles or houses. Ellie Welch HARRIS REALTY 6051 W. Los Positas, Pleasanton, gives some pointers on displaying a home properly.

"The potential home buyer," says Ellie, "sees the exterior of your home first, and we advise our clients to take special care in cleaning up any yard clutter and attending to unkempt lawns and gardens. Swept walks, freshly painted exterior doors, shutters, railings, shiny windows...all these combine to greet your prospective buyer with a big 'welcome'."

"When Mr. & Mrs. Buyer enter your home through the front door (which, of course, is firm on its hinges and doesn't squeek!) what they don't see, if you've prepared properly, are any of the following: dust, clutter, crooked pictures, burnt out light bulbs, dirty dishes on the sink, over-crowded closets, chipped or finger-marked paint, cracked putty around bath and kitchen fixtures and leaking faucets. What they do find to greet them is soft background music, pleasantly scented air (especially if there are smokers in the family), a burning fire on the grate, plenty of light, and the appearance of cleanliness and order which creates the feeling of spaciousness."

Ellie also points out that it is generally wise to have children and other pets out of the way or off the premises as they can occasionally keep buyers from thinking "positively."

"An alert Realtor," says Ellie, "will also advise the client to make small signs highlighting special features or new equipment, such as water heaters, dishwashers, etc."

These are just a few of the ideas your Realtor will pass on to you when you are putting your home on the market. He's an expert on home-selling and will put his knowledge to work on your specific situation to ensure a speedy and agreeable sale.

Outgoing President Jane Insee of the Livermore Senior Citizens Club accepts a resolution proclaiming May as Senior Citizens Month from Livermore Area Parks and Recreation Board Chairman Lester J. Knott.

Livermore seniors honored by LARPD

LIVERMORE — Senior Citizens: May is your month! The Livermore Area Recreation and Park District says so, in a poetic proclamation honoring the elderly for their contributions to society.

Senior Citizens Month in Livermore will kick off May 4 with installation of new officers in the LARPD - sponsored Senior Citizen Club. Installation will be led by Dorothy Svets of the Rec District at the Recreation Center, Eighth and H Streets.

New officers of the 850-member club are: Vera Paulson, president; Merle Creager, first vice president; Esther Koltun, second vice president; Vickie Wyld, secretary; Helena Davis, treasurer; Phyllis Hackmann, corresponding secretary and Joe Paulson, Marguerite Dutra and Edward Dutra, trustees.

All senior citizen activities, ranging from weekly craft sessions to glamorous trips, are open to Livermore residents over 50.

Once a week craft sessions taught by an LARPD specialist are held each Monday, 1-3 p.m. at the center, and all items made are sold at the annual Christmas Bazaar in November.

Whist, pinocle and bridge lessons are given every Thursday, 1-3 p.m. The choral group sponsored by Chabot College meets Tuesdays, 1-3 p.m. at Crestwood Lodge. Friday shopping trips with transportation by mini-bus are also on the seniors' busy agenda.

The Senior Citizen Club meets every Sunday of the year. In addition to their social and business meetings, members hold a card party on the third Friday of every month; make monthly visits to convalescent homes for a dessert bingo game, and offer members the chance to take out-of-town trips at group rates.

Trips for May and June will be to Lake Tahoe, Fort Bragg, San Diego, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Volunteers help seniors with their tax returns; the Red Cross offers a free blood pressure check clinic the first Monday of every month, noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Rec Center.

ter; and Senior Center personnel arrange for Meals on Wheels for shut-ins.

PLEASANTON — In honor of the "Good Times II" parade coming up May 3, the West Wind Youth Center and members of youth activity clubs which operate out of the center will be selling posters commemorating this year's parade.

The 11 by 17-inch posters will cost 50 cents and be available in the Recreation Department office, at the youth center on Black Avenue, local banks, as well as selected locations prior to the day of the parade. Youth will also be stationed all along the parade route and at the entrances of the Fairgrounds to sell available posters.

A limited number of 3,000 posters have been printed. All proceeds from the sale of the posters will go to benefit the West Wind Youth Center and the clubs' activities and excursions at the bequest of Martin.

Valley areas' population zooms

Despite an overall population drop of 0.4 per cent in Alameda County since 1970, the valley has recorded a 37 per cent rise over the same period, according to figures released by the Alameda County Planning Director.

The city of Pleasanton led the way, jumping from a population of 18,238 in 1970 to 32,300 today, an impressive 76.3 per cent increase.

Livermore rose from 37,7M3 in 1970 to 51,200 in 1975 despite a city council dedicated to controlling growth for the last five years.

Dublin, which is recorded in the county statistics as the upper Amador Valley, showed only a 6 per cent increase in population over the same span, rising from 15,041 to 15,900.

The Washington Planning Unit, which includes Fremont, Newark and Union City, recorded the largest numerical growth in the five year period by adding 40,000 persons, but the percentage increase was only 28 per cent.

The total population of that unit is 182,900, compared to 106,400 in the valley.

Oakland continued its gradual decline in population, slumping from 361,561 to 356,700 residents while Albany, Piedmont, Berkeley and San Leandro all suffered very slight drops in population.

Alameda, Emeryville, Hayward, Fremont, Newark, Union City, Pleasanton and Livermore all increased in size to offset the other losses and the total number of people living in incorporated areas rose slightly from 1970 to 1975.

The unincorporated areas showed an increase of 66 persons in the same time span.

The valley population in incorporated areas rose from 56,031 to 83,500 while inhabitants in the unincorporated areas were only 5.9 per cent more numerous than five years ago.

Pleasanton's population has increased steadily since 1970.

Cancer detection in Oakland

The American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute have set up 27 free cancer detection centers nationwide, and one of those is located in Oakland.

The project involves the study of breast cancer in women between the ages of 35 and 75 and the purpose is twofold: First, it is to screen women who have no symptoms and second, it is designed the participants concerning their health.

As part of the study, the center — which is located at 384 34th St. in Oakland near Merritt Hospital — wants to screen as broad a cross-section of the community as possible.

Each woman participating in the test will go through a comprehensive painless procedure taking about two hours. The results of the tests are reviewed by a panel of medical specialists and the reports of all screening examinations are then mailed to the participant and her doctor.

The service is free (ordinarily it would cost $100) and the center is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Monday through Saturday. Further information is available at 658-8525.

3-run sixth keeps Mustangs on top

It was bat day at Monte Vista Friday. A shipment of virgin Louisville Sluggers arrived in Danville just in time for the Mustangs' cross-town rematch with San Ramon.

"Maybe that explains it," joked MV shortstop Kevin Jones after he and his teammates had defeated the Wolves, 4-1, to maintain first position in the EBAL pennant race.

"It" was Jones' two-run home run in the bottom of the sixth inning, a 360-foot smash to left field off SR starter Dan Egbert. The blow capped a three-run rally that boosted the rejuvenated Mustangs' league mark to 4-1.

"All day, he'd been coming in with a fastball on the first pitch," the sophomore shortstop recalled. "I figured he'd do it again, and sure enough, there it was, about belt-high." Jones added, recalling the sweet spot with a pointing gesture.

Righthander Chris Dudley went the full seven innings for Monte Vista, allowing only two hits. Temporary control problems in the fifth cost him a run, as the Wolves got on the board first and appeared ready to prolong a Mustang slump which had begun a week earlier with an 18-inning 2-2 contest at Dublin.

With two away, Dudley hit SR leadoff man Carl Speck on his left elbow. Speck stole second, and Dudley walked Steve Krekel. Paul Miller then bounced one toward second which took a tricky hop off the lip of the infield grass. MV second baseman Mark Silva couldn't handle it, and Speck steamed home as the ball caromed into center field.

The Mustangs answered with a run in the bottom of the fifth, their first tally in 27 innings. With one down, Kevin Johnson reached on a fielding error by SR third baseman Mike Cary, then took second when left fielder Tim Nelson couldn't find the handle. Dennis Dow bounced out to second, moving Johnson to third and bringing up leadoff man Silva. It was here that Monte Vista coach George Cockerton called Silva aside for a bit of counseling. "I told him I was thinking of pulling him for a pinch-hitter," said Cockerton. "He said, 'I can hit this guy.'"

Silva went for an eye-high fastball and drove it to left-center for a double, and Johnson jogged home.

Egbert pitched himself into trouble in the Mustangs' half of the sixth, walking Tim Moriarty and Rico Fiorenza for openers, then wild-pitching them along.

After Greg Goodman grounded out to third, Dudley drove Moriarty home with a sacrifice fly to deep left field.

Creamcups win on Fruchtenicht's HR

The Creamcups pulled out an 8-6 Pleasanton Bobby Sox softball win over the Super Stars last week, scoring five times in the final two innings.

Lynn Fruchtenicht's two-run homer was the big blow for the winners. Teammate Wendy Behrbaum drove in two runs with a pair of singles. Loretta Erdman had three hits. The Jaycees' Rene Yandell also had three hits. Terry Wegen recorded six putouts in the field for the losers.

The Amazons towered over the Jazzy Janes, 16-9, powered by the hitting of Bernadette Pla and Julie Bangart. Both drove in five runs. Jayne Kuhns homered and doubled for the winners and drove in two runs. Patty Gadd also had two RBI's. For the Janes, Bonnie Brause singled three times for five RBI's.

The Creamcups jumped on the Untouchables, 15-4, aided by Lourie Morley's good pitching. Second baseman Polly Haarbauer played fine defense. Behrbaum drove in three runs for the Cups with a triple and two singles. Morley had two RBI's. The Untouchables' Marion Hagler homered.

The Violets' Lisa Thomas stopped the Bluebells on four hits in a 7-4 victory, panning Gower had three singles for the winners, and three RBI's. Thomas also had three hits. Jeannie Hemphill doubled.

The Rinky Dinks out blasted the Royals, 21-19, with the help of fine defensive plays by Cindy Cranford and Karie Theis. Janis Callon and Theis homered for the Dinks.

Mike Zampa

That kids' soccer match today involving Ballistic United of Pleasanton and an under-10 San Diego team is probably the forerunner of statewide championships in the sport for youngsters down to eight years old.

Coach Art Dawe proposed the challenge match with Loma Villa aware that the California Youth Soccer Association is pondering playoff expansion.

The Northern and Southern sectors already have intra-house State Cup championships, but they are euphemisms. It can only be the State Finals when the Northern winners face the best of the South.

Dawe knew his challenge match request would be met with great interest. The federated CYSA will discuss statewide playoffs this summer, and today's contest in Balboa Stadium will offer hard evidence on the subject.

Ron Steele, district commissioner of the CYSA, admits the possibility of state North-South playoffs. Dawe has heard the championships could evolve as soon as next season.

Considering current trends, a real State Cup seems likely. Everyone is playoff-conscious these days, from the promoters of the Little League World Series to proponents of a California high school basketball championship. Youth soccer has taken on more tournaments each year, and a ceaseless series of all-star clashes between Northerners and Southern California players.

The only thing left is a super tournament to single out the state's best teams in every age category.

Many people favor the plan for older soccer players. They scrunch up their noses, however, at the thought of eight, nine and 10-year-olds clashing in a sort of Kindergarten Super Bowl. Travel, separation from parents, and enormous game pressures are heavy burdens to drop on young tykes.

Younger players are seldom included in overnight trips for those reasons.

Dawe, however, is convinced the youngsters can withstand the pressure. He should know. His team has already traveled to Las Vegas to win a tournament, and to Clovis to secure the

"We used to think they were too young for this sort of thing, but now we realize it's not so. Actually, you should ask the kids how they feel about it, but they've been as enthusiastic as heck for the San Diego trip.

"The Ballistic club is proud of its program of kids going to other places to play," Dawe said. "As long as everyone is enthusiastic, and no one is inconvenienced, it's fine."

In fact, before he embarked on the nine-hour drive to San Diego, Dawe suggested that the parents, more than the children, need shelter from soccer barnstorming.

For one, the parents must plunk down the cash for gasoline, flight tickets and other expenses of the road. They have to wrangle a day of vacation to arrive at the game site on time. Then, when the contest is over, they must pile the troops back in the automobile, drive straight home, and return to work Monday morning, drained.

The players, meanwhile, are exulting. "It's great for them because they have the opportunity to take trips they might not get to make when they get into high school," Dawe said.

In fact, youth soccer may be rivaling student exchange programs as the leading exporter of California youngsters. Pleasanton players toured British Columbia prior to the fall soccer season, and last summer a local all-star team played one-night stands in Europe. The highlight of that junket was a day at the World Cup Soccer Championships.

To the sophisticated babe who has lunched in London, slept in Austria and played in Germany, what's an afternoon in San Diego's Balboa Park? How can he miss mama when he'll probably be home in time for cookies and Kojak?

Some parents are still hesitant to commit grade-school kids to super-duper little league championships. Who knows when an idiot fan or writer will dent a tender ego for missing the winning goal in the waning seconds?

Dawe's trip met with acceptance, however, from Pleasanton parents. All 17 Ballistic players made the junket for this morning's game. Some jetted into San Diego last night after a day of Little League baseball.

The Loma Villa coach conducted a phone check in San Diego to secure parents' approval for the one game extension to the soccer season. Their schedule came to a close two weeks ago.

The Southerners were eager for the match, Dawe said. They responded quickly to his challenge. The matchup was finalized with less than two weeks of groundwork and little bickering.

The cooperative atmosphere lends to the possibility of statewide playoffs as soon as next year.

In the older age divisions there should be little objection. When the discussion turns to the 10-year olds and younger there will be squabbles. Probably not enough, though, to forestall the plan.

There'll be some grumbling from concerned parents, then a mad dash to rearrange everyone's vacation schedule.

EBAL swim record carnival

Nine new meet records were established yesterday in the East Bay Athletic League swim meet at Valley Swim Center, adjacent to Dublin High.

Just two of the marks came on the varsity level, however, as marginal 'A' division performers dropped to the frosh-soph level for post-season competition improved the 'B' races considerably.

The only varsity swimmer to break an individual record was Granada's Chris Hoenig, who bettered the old 500 free standard with a 4:57.7 clocking. Hoenig and teammates Steve Cutting, Ron Johansen and John Rizzo combined to crack the old 400 free relay mark, covering the distance in 3:27.6 during a three-team race with Amador and Livermore.

On the 'B' level, records were being erased right and left.

The host Gaels opened the meet with a record-breaking 1:51.3 time in the 200 medley relay, less than a second off the varsity time. Stew Burke, who also won the 100 IM, Victor Hinojosa who would later top the old 50 fly mark, Mark Steinhoff, who broke a record in the very next event and Eric Steinhoff, swam the the relay for Dublin.

Mark Steinhoff won two other events including, as mentioned a record in the day's second event. Steinhoff won the 200 free in 1:54.2 — better than Cutting's winning varsity time of 1:54.4 — and later took the 100 free in another record time of 52.5.

Amador's Brian Story acquired the 50 free record, finishing the sprint in 24.1.

The Gaels' Hinojosa a varsity swimmer during the dual meet campaign, slashed the frosh-soph 50 fly mark to 25.8. In the 100 breast, San Ramon's Tom Horner sped to a new standard of 1:06.1 in the final individual all-timer of the day.

One last 'B' record fell — in the 400 free relay. The Amador team of Story, Steve Pratusch, who finished second in the 100 back, Brian Yparraquiere and Matt Pearson splashed to a 3:39 mark.

As expected, Granada dominated the meet, capturing seven individual varsity events and both relays.

In addition to the relays, Cutting won both the 200 free and 100 free (51.4).

Hoenig blasted the 500 mark and took the 200 IM in 2:07.8. Three Matadors won an event apiece. Rizzo grabbed first in the 50 free (23.2) while Dave Johansen won the 100 back (1:01.3) and Dave Eckart the 100 breast (1:07.2).

A pair of Amador mermen won the only two events the Mats did not claim.

The Dons' Dave Potts won the diving competition, held Friday, with 384.5 points. Jeff Gaekle was yesterday's only non-Mat winner, taking the 100 fly in 57.5.

Keith mops up, 'Pokes win 4-0

MIKE ZAMPA, editor

Keith Richardson is the main man as the EBAL pennant race enters the panic stage.

Livermore High's senior righthander proved that Friday with an inning and two-thirds of flawless relief pitching in a 4-0 victory over Dublin.

Richardson was making his second appearance of the week, just three days after shutting out Monte Vista, 1-0, on four hits. It was a rare feat for Richardson, normally a once-a-week pitcher.

"He (coach Kevin Drake) asked me if I could go a couple of innings and I told him yeah," Richardson said. "I felt o.k., and besides, I wanted to pitch against these guys."

Keith got his wish in the bottom of the sixth inning with Livermore leading Dublin, 3-0. The blond fireballer replaced starter John Janzen with one out and the bases loaded. He proceeded to set down five Gaels in succession, three on strikes, to save the verdict for Janzen.

"That's just why I don't pitch guys a lot early in the season," Drake pointed out afterwards. "I would rather save them for when it counts."

"These guys scored two runs on us in the last inning last year to win," Drake recalled, "and I didn't want that to happen again."

Richardson saw to that, pouring the fastball to five consecutive Dublin hitters.

With the layout of the league schedule, it is conceivable that Richardson will pitch in three of Livermore's final four EBAL contests. If Drake's claim that "good pitching will stop good hitting" holds true, the Cowboys could be in line for a pennant.

They may want to beef up on timely base hits first, however. Ten Livermore runners were stranded on the bases against Dublin, including five at third base. Four of the men in the latter category reached third before two were out. "That was pathetic," said Drake.

The Cowboys collected five base hits against losing pitcher Jerry Puertas and his replacement, Robin Sherwood. Janzen and Richardson held Dublin to four scattered singles.

Janzen worked well for five and a third innings, escaping an occasional jam with the help of his defense. In the bottom of the sixth inning, however, he gave up consecutive one-out singles to Dave Anderson and Jim McCuaig, then walked Sean Mays to load the bases.

That was Drake's cue to call on the bullpen. "Janzen had a muscle tighten up in his arm," Drake said, "and he was hanging his curve ball."

Until then, the left hander struck out five, while walking three. He was rescued twice by double plays.

Livermore opened the scoring against Puertas in the third inning when Wilkerson singled home Rich Palmer from second base.

Palmer added two more in the fourth inning with a fly ball that bounced to the left field fence for a triple.

"His average has been pretty low," Drake said of Palmer, but he got both cheeks of his bleep into that one. He put on a show for us in batting practice Wednesday."

The Cowboys added an un-

United in San Diego

Before probably its biggest outdoor audience of the season, Ballistic United closes out an improbable year of soccer this morning in San Diego's Balboa Stadium.

The under-10 Uniteds face Loma Villa of San Diego in a challenge match at 11 a.m.

The contest will be the featured exhibition during San Diego's Cup Tournament for older age group teams. A crowd of near 1,000 is expected to be on hand.

That would be Ballistic's largest audience of the season, except for the throng of thousands at the Cow Palace who witnessed the youngsters in a 10-minute exhibition prior to an Earthquakes' game.

The vast numbers shouldn't affect coach Art Dawe's team, after a year of unparalleled achievement. Ballistic is the State Cup under-10 champion for the Northern half of the state. It holds a 33-0 record against under-10 opposition, and has lost but a handful of matches to under-12 teams. In the 33 victories United has scored nearly 190 goals.

Loma Villa placed second in San Diego's Central League, but regrouped to win five State Cup South contests, including the championship April 12, 5-0.

"We don't know much about the team except that they came up nicely in the Spring," Dawe said.

Dawe initiated the exhibition contest after his club defeated Walnut Creek in the State Cup final, 1-0. That game was won on a goal by Mike Deleray 28 seconds from the finish.

Dawe contacted the Southern commissioner of the California Youth Soccer Association, and won permission to challenge the South's under-10 champ to the special match.

Possible game sites included 50,000 seat Aztec Stadium on the San Diego State campus, or Spartan Stadium in San Jose. Both were booked up, however, and so Balboa Stadium was chosen.

The Ballistic team is favored to win the contest, based on its impeccable record, the overwhelming offense, and a stingy defense, led by goal keeper Andy Eelsing. Captain Karl Kesterke is a key player in the United attack at his sweeper position.

Goal scorers besides Deleray include Peter Leaf and Todd Sweet.

This is not the team's first out-of-town performance of the soccer season. United played and won at the Silver State Classic in Las Vegas in March.

"After being in Las Vegas, and seeing teams from Arizona, Fresno and Southern California, I'm convinced the Valley has an extremely high standard of soccer," Dawe said confidently before leaving for the San Diego journey. "But looked what happened in Fresno (where the State Cup was played). We went down to the final 40 seconds before we won. Soccer is like that. Anything can happen."

Ballistic signups May 10

Pleasanton's Ballistic Soccer Club will hold player registration for boys with birthdates from 1958 to through 1969 according to the following schedule: g 1968-79 — May 10, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Walnut Grove School multi-purpose room 1966-67 — May 10, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Walnut Grove School multi-purpose room 1964-65 — May 12, 7 to 9:15 p.m., Alisal School auditorium 1958-63 — May 13, 7 to 9:15 p.m., Alisal School auditorium

These will be the only re-registration dates for the 1975 season. Others will be placed on waiting lists. Families with two youngsters or more, may sign up at one session. They should attend the session for the youngest player

The regular Fall season will run August 18 through Nov. 8, followed by seeding round games to Dec. 15, then the city tournament in January. There will be no Spring season. For further information, call 846-7168.

Air pollution and the facts of valley life

If the quality of our atmosphere is to become the one firm standard from which all other values as to style of living, transportation, tax rates and the economy are to be determined, then it is time we all had a better idea as to just what "smog" is, and what we can do about it. There is very little agreement among "the experts" on those key points, and what they do know is not understood by the public.

This reporter was privileged to share a 90-minute conversation with one of the more knowledgeable Bay Area authorities on the atmosphere. What we learned from that conversation, and from some related sources, is just enough to convince us that the air is full of misinformation on the subject of pollution.

Dario A. Levaggi holds the important post of Director of Technical Services for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District. It is his staff which measures and records the pollutants which range back and forth through these nine counties. Levaggi is a "lifetime crusader" in the battle against Bay Area pollution; but he is also a realist who knows our limitations in that struggle.

"Air pollution will always be with us whenever you gather a million or more people together" . . . "Given our sophisticated sit, it is impossible to imagine removing smog, even were to society, it is impossible to imagine removing smog, even were to transplant an entire American city to the middle of the Sahara Desert" . . . "The Environmental Protection Agency told us how to meet their federal standards for clean air, but that answer would place most of us on the bread lines." Levaggi is one expert who isn't afraid to tackle smog for what it really is . . . "a blending of all kinds of gases and suspended particles, some created by nature and over which we have very little control."

The "oxidant" factor in "smog" is just one such element. Nature provides us with up to three parts per million of that particular "pollutant." This valley has — in 1973 — recorded "highest hourly average" of 22 parts per million. The result of just this one reading was a valley rating "exceeding the state oxidant standard on 63 days" of that one year.

It is only in this one oxidant reading that the valley exceeds those standards. In all other pollutant factors — carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, sulphur dioxide — the valley had zero days when we exceeded those same state and federal standards.

WLOS THIS POLLUTANT COME FROM? "By measuring the wind velocity and other atmospheric factors, we know that your valley will have one day perfectly free of pollution, followed by a day heavy with pollution. From this we can conclude that most of your air pollution is transported," Levaggi states. In other words, "about three fourths" of the valley's smog flows in from other T@oints.

What is the major source of man-made pollution? The gasoline-burning vehicle, the experts have concluded. "We have imposed just about all the controls available on industry — there is very little more we can do in that area," Levaggi states. The EPA saw this, suggesting that something like 85 percent of all vehicular miles travelled be abolished. Even

A week for schools

The tradition that says we should set aside a few days each year as "Public Schools Week" has been somewhat lost in an enlightened era wherein educators and parents try to get together for all those occasions when there is some item of mutual interest or concern. No one is going to argue with that kind of change.

There are still some among us however who need a little prod — or even a good boot in the behind — to get us into the classroom, or near the campus. "Public Schools Week" is that kind of catalyst.

Once the particular campaign of Masonic Lodges across the land for reasons that are no longer as evident, the idea of setting aside one week when the community would focus its attention on the meaning and merit of our public education system is still valid. At a time when there are those prepared to enlighten us on all that is wrong with this country, it is good to recall some of the benefits which Americans, and Americans alone, enjoy because of our democratic beliefs. Public education is perhaps the most significant of those blessings.

Those who come to live or visit here from other lands — particularly school-age youngsters — unfailingly marvel at the scope of our "free education" system. No one claims that this country has the best schools in the world; but neither can anyone challenge the opportunity afforded almost all children in these United States, from kindergarten to college, to improve their minds and enhance their lives, at public expense.

Those of us living in suburbia — often critical of this or that flaw in our community system — should be particularly grateful for the educational system available to our children. By any standard you care to apply, our classrooms are among the world's finest.

In the week starting Monday, April 28, we might take time to remember that "Public Schools Week" is one American tradition that never loses its meaning.

The week in retrospect

The teaching VP role

The recent meet and confer proposal outlined to Pleasanton Elementary School District trustees contains a section on administrative apportionment that will stir feelings mightily.

It deals with the position of teaching vice principal, a slot that was instituted in the district this past September. Previously, vice principal positions were the only principal-subordinate slots in the district . . . and those just at Harvest Park and Pleasanton, the two schools with intermediate grades.

The Amador Valley Teachers Association wants all teaching vice-principal positions abolished. It should be noted at this juncture that their can be a considerable difference between a vice principal and a TEACHING vice principal.

Depending on the enrollment of the school, the range of duties handled by the principal and the expertise of both, the teaching vice principal may have a 90 to 10 percent ratio of administrative duties to classroom teaching or just the reverse. Or it could be 50-50. It varies with every school.

With this in mind, let's proceed through the remainder of the statement in the AVTA proposal: "Those occupying the teaching vice-principal role shall be returned to the classroom" the AVTA proposal states in no uncertain terms.

"They shall not be made into full vice-principals. Instead, the following schedule shall be observed in the assignment of site area administrators unless negotiated with the Certificated Employees Council (of AVTA)."

The AVTA statement then asks that any K-5 school with 200 or less students have the equivalent of 1/2 administrator, schools with 200 to 800 students one administrator and those with 800 to 1,200 students the equivalent of 1 1/2 administrators. At the intermediate or middle school level, AVTA wants one administrator for schools with less than 500 enrollment and two at schools with student counts between 500 and 1,500.

The only school whose present enrollment would fit in the "1/2 administrator" category is Vintage Hills, a K-3 school with a present enrollment of 181.

Harvest Park, Pleasanton Elementary and Walnut Grove all are in excess of 800 enrollment, though the former two are considered middle schools despite having other than grades 6-8. Pleasanton has a K-3 section and Harvest Park four fifth grade classes.

The only schools that would "qualify" for two administrators under terms of the AVTA proposal are Harvest Park and Pleasanton . . . since the plan calls for two at middle schools with enrollments between 500 and 1,500 students.

Let us be proud, my children.

Even taking away the lower grades presently attending the two campuses, the venerable First Street campus and the landscape-shy Valley Avenue school would still qualify.

Tied to the total question of teaching vice principals are a host of weighty questions, not the least of which are average class size, administrative stature of the position and the opportunities for advancement to administrative positions for women in the district.

Aside from Gloria Jones, who serves as director of pupil personnel services for Amador and Pleasanton, administrative roles in the Pleasanton district are almost exclusively the area of men.

Phyllis Clark is listed as a teaching vice principal at Vintage Hills and Kay Bolles in the same capacity at Fairlands. Mrs. Clark is in the unique position of being a TVP at a brand new school with the smallest enrollment in the district . . . with the principal (John Bristow) also assigned the same duties at nearby Valley View. At the latter, Hershell Culley is listed as a teaching vice-principal. Total enrollment of the two schools is presently around 700.

However, this could change if one of the options dealing with school attendance boundaries in the district is adopted.

In order to maintain a completely fair attitude with all those involved, it is necessary to list the other persons presently assigned as teaching vice principals. They include Del Warren (Alisal), Ron Dell'Immagine (Pleasanton), and Tom Ingham (Walnut Grove).

We have sounded out several people in the district, including TVP's, AVTA leaders and Carl Krause, director of personnel services, on the subject. Today's column is meant to note the problem, only.

In future issues, including the news pages, we will go into it at length.

Counseling coverage

Editor, The Times: On behalf of the families who will benefit, may I thank you for the excellent newspaper coverage given the Twin Valley Counseling Services Second Annual Folk Concert held April 11th.

The picture coverage was so outstanding. Twin Valley Counseling Services appreciates your cooperation.

Geraldine M. Deck, General Chairman
Second Annual Folk Concert

The two events are run concurrently. Hawaii week (which was Mexico week a year ago) enables readers of our local newspapers to win a pair of trips to Hawaii.

The deal is not a bad one. With more than 70 merchants participating they are able to provide a pair of Hawaii trips for the general public, a pair for merchants or their employees, two nights for two in Las Vegas for the general public and a weekend for two at Carmel for the general public.

The winners will get their good news at Castlewood Country Club on June 6, just one day before the Livermore Rodeo. The Maid of Livermore will be crowned the same night, after having survived some tough competition.

John informed me that beauty is not the prime factor while choosing queens and other reigning lassies these days.

Talent, personality, poise and their intelligent response to an interview is equally important, he declared.

A hell of a state of affairs, I say. Since when have beauty contests become talent shows? A lass with lissome legs, a lovely smile and curves where the curves belong has some right to recognition on this tired old globe.

Beauty is a thing to be treasured and appreciated and there is nothing on this earth more exquisite and delightful than a truly lovely woman.

That is not sexism, my friends. That is art appreciation. And where, I ask can a better artist be found than the eino who created this tired old globe, taking a rib from Adam to make Eve in the process?

Probably I will never get the chance to judge one of those contests, having the reputation for male chauvinism I have earned with such earnest nobility.

But you can bet your sweet Post Toasties if the oppor-

I am indebted to the Chronicle's great four-panel philosopher and my journalistic peer for reminding me of the fragments of wisdom which motivated my generation. Snoopy tells us that a Dragon Fly passing overhead is apt to swoop down and sew up your lips, thus deprive you of the ability to eat. Hence, a sure death.

And a Lady Bug on the loose is equally dangerous, and best dispatched with the warning that her "house is on fire and your children will burn." Gruesome, but effective.

Most of what we learned was based on the harsher realities of life, and even some things that were not for real. The object lesson was the thing, and the means always justified the desired end . . . which was of course to the scare hell out of us kids. That was part of the private school teaching. The nuns, God bless 'em, believed in any measure necessary to instill a love for life, a respect for authority, and good habits aimed at avoiding life's only other alternative — eternal damnation.

"Do you mean forever and EVER?" we would ask Sister Nora in wide-eyed terror. "Yes, and do any of you know how long eternity is?" Of course we didn't, so Sister would readily provide the answer. "A small bird flying around a large mountain touches its wing against that mountain with each passing flight. Not until the mountain is destroyed by the blow of that bird's wing, will eternity end."

The thought of that poor bird, wing smashed to a pulp, flying around and around that bloodied mountain lulled me to sleep on many a stormy night.

Being simple folk, with needs to match that depression-era crunch, we dealt largely in basics. Our model was the sky above, the earth beneath our feet, the animals and insects which touched our lives. The world was something else, way out there.

There was that lesson which sought to remind us of the Biblical teaching relative to our earthly beginnings . . . "and to dust thou shalt return." Sister Nora brought home her message by advising us that "each one of you must consume a little dirt sometime in your life, in order to remind you of life's start, and finish." Tommy Ridley was the smart aleck in our class, and of course our leader.

"Now here's a handful of dirt," he declared in his own lesson following that day's classes. "We each have to eat a little bit because that way we'll know what's going to happen to us when we die." He passed down the line of awe-struck moppets, dirt cupped in his hands like some sacramental offering, daring each of us in turn to refuse to partake of that meal. I returned home later to advise everyone of my great triumph in proving my humanity. Mother just sighed her little sigh. An older brother was more responsive. "Idiot!" he exclaimed. "I suppose if the lesson had been about founding the church on Peter's rock you would have all gone and swallowed a mouthful of stones."

At times the lesson of life was closer to home. We had a few in our class who loved to share the family's woe with a larger audience. I can recall when Sister Nora was talking to us about the wages of sin, and that sort of thing. Shirley Frazer couldn't resist.

"My Uncle Charlie has this problem and my mother tells my father that his damnation is in a bottle. What does that mean, sister?"

"We should not discuss private family matters in class," Sister admonished her. She suggested we make up an object lesson out of Shirley's plight. Mr. "A" and Mrs. "B", that sort of thing. Shirley was quick to catch on.

"If Mr. A drinks a lot and comes home late, falling over Mrs. B's green overstuffed chair in the parlor and swearing and everything, is Mr. A doomed to eternal hell?" Sister Nora had the patented answer. "We should never pass final judgement on anyone, but rather pray for them." And then the inevitable clincher . . . "make a little novena and do some extra penance, like giving up sweets and saving your pennies for the poor children in China."

We were forever saving our pennies for the kids in China. Heavens all, we were advised. But worthy of our prayers and our cash. The plight of Chiang Kai-shek and his minions was ever with us. Even at the Saturday afternoon movies. There would be a ten-minute documentary, "courtesy of the Committee to Save Free China." As the tragedy of burning homes and mangled babes unfolded, an off-screen voice would intone . . . "and as the ushers pass among you, please remember that even a small gift might save the life of one Chinese child."

And so we gave, thinking ourselves so very well blessed, while Chiang's babies — all too soon — were returning to the ashes of our common origin. The fact that most of them lived, to spawn a Communist stronghold one billion strong at latest count, is of no consequence. Not unless you are a Vietnam baby, with your home burned, and your body mangled.

Snoopy's philosophy isn't really new. Just updated.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Probably the second most amusing municipal hulla-balloo I have ever witnessed was the great totem pole controversy in Livermore a short time ago.

The funniest, of course, was the St. Claire donnybrook in Santa Clara which pitted Jimmy Bacigalupe against the Jesuit fathers who are in charge of the University there.

Jimmy was the mayor of Santa Clara for many years, having won the office while delivering campaign speeches from the running board of his beer truck.

Having earned his lofty status Jim purchased Durgan's Corner, a wheat squeezings and juniper juice dispensary directly across the street from the University. He then became firm friends with one Benjamano Bufano, an artist whose reputation made up for the fact that he was so small he did all his shopping in the boys sections of clothing stores.

Not that Benny ever owned many new clothes. Money was one thing the little sculpture wanted. But that's another story.

Ben came to Jimmy with an idea for creating a statue of St. Claire to decorate and enhance the entrance to the city and sold the mayor on the idea.

Not until Benny had drawn the plans, made the mold and had the giant statue, which must be at least 40 feet high, created did the objections come from the university.

The Jesuit president of that organization studied the work of art, detected some hint of a feminine bosom in the artist's work, and promptly rejected it.

A monumental civic battle started and ended in victory for the university and defeat for the statue, Benny and Jim. The comic opera aspects of the war had to be seen to be appreciated but they will live long in my memory.

So too will the great totem pole controversy, a hassle I will never rightly understand. Employees of the City of Livermore took that tortured art work and almost cut it in half while installing it at the corner of Holmes and Murrieta in a mini-park there.

The artist, a militant Indian named Adam Nordall, objected and eventually the city was forced to remove the concrete foundation they had planted for the pole and replace the missing parts.

Looking at it from across the street today I could not help wondering how anyone would not have recognized those ten circular notches, each representing ten years of Livermore history, as a part of the totem pole. I was staring at the thing eye to eye (the middle pair of eyes, it having three sets) and could not have missed the rings being part of the art work.

I'm getting used to that pole now and can look it right in the eye without turning around and taking off.

The reason I had been looking at the pole was because I had been visiting with one John Strong, manager of the Livermore Chamber of Commerce and a truly dedicated laddie.

He wanted to tell me about Hawaii week and the Maid of Livermore pageant.
